

SERVICE FOR PROVIDING SPEAKER VOICE METRICS

ABSTRACT

A method of providing voice metrics over an established telephone call between a user and a subscriber can include receiving voice information from the user over the call and determining biometric information from the voice information for the user. The method further can include encoding the biometric metric information and sending the biometric information to the subscriber over the call.